In this table of contents, all headings are made to correspond with the actual headings in the main text below; this has led to a table of contents which is considerably different from the original one. In marking the changes and additions, the reference point is only the original table, and not the original text of the headings in the main text. Any changes effected in the latter headings are reported at their proper places, below; except, of course,

- (a) such systematic changes as have been implemented throughout the edited text and accounted for in chapter 2 above;
- (b) systematic changes in proper names, accounted for wherever they first appear in the text.

Rev. Shimunika's acknowledgements (headed, in the main text: KUTONTOLOLA INTRODUCTION) were not included in his original table of contents.

Note that in the title of the original table of contents, and also in the title of chapter 56, the word Likota is used not in its basic meanings of 'tree' and 'family group', but simply to denote Shimunika's treatise on Nkoya history; omission of the phrase lya Bankoya in this context may be intended to produce a sense of intimacy and authority.

The original sometimes has na Linanga instead of Nalinanga; the uniform spelling has been implemented throughout, but see notes below.

As explained below (cf. the note preceding chapter 16), a full chapter (original chapter 16) was deleted from the main text at this point: it repeated almost literally chapter 15. As a result, all subsequent chapter numbers in the table of contents have been decreased by one; this will not be indicated again for each individual case.

1 Liyonilya mulela bana kutuka kuyaha bana, niye sheta. Mukwetunga wa mukulwane, lizina lyendi niye Shikalamo,” [original page break]

Then, as the page is full, a page follows with a format rather different from the rest of Shimunika's original manuscript: typed single-spaced, on a different typewriter, and with unmistakably Shimunika's style, including the lay-out in biblical verses. This page does not have an enlarged chapter number, but merely the indication Litapululo 4 as the indication of a new chapter 4. Since this page, too, has a few of Mwene's corrections, since elsewhere in Likota Shimunika himself refers to the story of the Cooking-Pot of Kingship as told on this page (chapter 35), and since one of the Nkoya phrases cited at the beginning of this footnote appears actually at the end of the inserted page (as indicated below), I take it that the page is essentially original. Yet there is little doubt about its being retyped by H.H. Mwene: it shows the disconnected verbal forms (e.g. mu na konzo) typical of Mwene's Nkoya orthography, and on the previous page of the manuscript, at the heading HA FUMA WENE WA BANKOYA etc., a gloss appears in Mwene's handwriting: ‘see next paper for pages 5 and 6’. The text on this page differs in many details from an original page which I photographed at Rev. Shimunika's house in Luampa, 1977; see Appendix 2.

[THE BURIAL SITES OF THE MYENE OF THE NKOYA]<sup>336</sup>

lya tikitwiile na ba [by] Hamba H. Mwene

1. Livumo lya Mwene Libupe (mukazi)<sup>337</sup>

Mwene	shizino	mbalila
1 Libupe	Tumba	Kabombo
2 Shilayi	Tumba	Kabombo

- <sup>336</sup> These four lists were added to Rev. J.M. Shimunika's text of Likota lya Bankoya by H.H. Mwene, along with such other additions and alterations as the latter made to the manuscript in the mid-1970s, in anticipation of publication. Lists 1 and 4 have been typed on the same typewriter; list 2 on a different one; and list 3 on a different one again (cf. Appendix I). All four lists contain specimens of H.H. Mwene's handwriting.

That these lists have a different status from the main body of the Likota lya Bankoya text is already clear from the fact that a number of names of rulers appear in them which are not mentioned in Likota lya Bankoya: Mwene Kasholongombe, Mwene Katalamanenga, Mwene Ndendola (all three in the Kahare line; list 2), whereas some prominent names in the Mutondo line, discussed at length in Likota lya Bankoya, were only inserted by Mr H.H. Mwene on second thoughts: when he was among the Nkoya readers to correct the proofs for Part II in 1985. This applies to the names of Mwene Mungambwa and Mwene Mashiku, list 1. Also, the lists go to considerable length in the allocation of dynastic numbers in Roman figures — whereas Shimunika's text as reconstructed by me lacked both insistence and consistency on this point — in reflection, no doubt, of the multifarious, competitive and diffuse processes of state formation in western Zambia in the course of the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries, which simply cannot be represented as the orderly evolution of one or two well-organized dynasties observing strict patterns of succession — as I have argued in Part I above.

The lists must, therefore, be seen not so much as a systematic compilation of the information as presented in Likota lya Bankoya, but — at least in part — as a presentation of the results of personal inquiry by Mr Mwene. This justifies their inclusion here: as his personal contribution to our study of the history of western Zambia.

When reworking the Likota lya Bankoya manuscript, Mr Mwene intended to let a fully written-out, i.e. discursive, version of essentially the same information as contained in these lists precede the main text of the book; the present list would then form an appendix. Mr Mwene's Preface as included in the present edition still derives from this plan. In 1985 he suggested that this discursive text could be omitted if the tabulated list was to be included. The present editor has followed this suggestion, but for fear of losing valuable historical information beyond retrieval it was felt that such inconsistencies as could be spotted between the discursive and the tabulated list, both in their mid-1970s and their 1985 versions, should be indicated here in footnotes — as has been done for Rev. Shimunika's text itself. For it is such discrepancies — evidence of Mr Mwene's personal struggle to come closer to the historical truth — that will guide us to formulate new research questions, and to appreciate the social and cultural role of history in the presentday society of western Zambia.

The lists will not appear in Part III in an English translation, because for one thing they do not form part of the original text of Likota ly a Bankoya, for another because they merely consist of names whose English equivalents can be easily reconstructed by the reader by reference to my chapter 2 above; e.g. Nk. Kabombo = Eng. Kabompo, etc. As far as the headings of the columns are concerned, shizino means ‘burial site’ and mbalila specifies the district or area.

- 337 ‘The matrilineage of Mwene Libupe (female)’

The discursive text consists of three sections preceded by an introduction (I have subjected Mr H.H. Mwene’s text to the same systematic editorial changes as Rev. Shimunika’s main text):

‘Bankoya bafuma ku Lwalaba ku Wuluba bombekele mushinzi wa Lwalaba noho bezile ku mutwe wa Kabombo ku Mbuwa ya Tumba bazikile lukena lwabo. (The Nkoya came from the Lualába in Lubaland; they crossed the Lualába river and then went to the headwaters of the Kabompo, to the plain of Tumba, where they built their capital)’

[follows essentially the information in list 2 as from line no. 1, with specific differences to be spelled out below]

It is interesting to note that in the tabulated list the earliest, female Myene are almost exclusively claimed for the Mutondo line, whereas in the discursive text the period of the female Myene is distinguished from that of male Myene, in such a way as to suggest that such a distinction would apply to both the Mutondo and the Kahare line. Also noteworthy is that the lines of Momba and Kabulwebulwe are discussed in the tabulated list, but not in the discursive text.

All information from the discursive text will be rendered here in footnotes, in so far as this information differs from or adds to that in the tabulated list; thus it is unnecessary to include Mr H.H. Mwene's discursive text itself.

The information in the tabulated lists and the discursive text turns out to be rather in agreement for the Mutondo line, but shows considerable discrepancies for the Kahare line.

793 Orig. Shilemandumba, see note to main Nkoya text (5: 1). Also note that here Katete appears before Shilemantumba, contrary to Rev. Shimunika's account.

794 As stated in 1985, also in the discursive text; in c. 1976 this item was listed as: Nkulo, Lwena-Mwito.

795 The discursive text has: ku Namasheshe, mukati ka Mukunkike na Namasheshe ('at Namasheshe, halfway between Mukunkike and Namasheshe')

796 The discursive text has: Litoya lyा Mbuma ku ncango ya Shilumbilo ('the Mbuma valley on the Shilumbilo stream')

797 H.H. Mwene added this line only in 1985. Thus all subsequent original (= c. 1976) line numbers in this list were increased by one. Mwene Mungambwa likewise does not come up in the discursive text.

<sup>800</sup> ‘Kashunkani Mutondo III, who simply abdicated’ (and therefore has no royal burial site to be listed here).

<sup>801</sup> The discursive text adds: niye bawanine ba Makuwa, niye wa zikishile Nkambe ya Mankoya. Wafwila ku Nyango mwaka wa 1914. (‘who was in office when the Whites came, and had the Mankoya boma built. He died on the Nyango in the year 1914.’)

<sup>803</sup> H.H. Mwene added this line only in 1985. Thus all subsequent original line numbers (= from c. 1976) in this list were again increased by one.

The discursive text adds: niye unali myaka likumi (= 10), ha litunga lya Bankoya. (‘during ten years in the land of the Nkoya.’) — a reference not to the duration of Muchayila’s first reigning period but to that of his exile in Kalabo.

<sup>806</sup> ‘Kalapukila Mutondo X, burial site at Nyangula.’ The discursive text had: niye watambwile U.N.I.P. (‘the one who welcomed U.N.I.P.’)

By the most unusual arrangement (considering South Central African neo-traditional political structures in general), when Mwene Kalapukila died in 1981 he was succeeded by his predecessor, Mwene Muchayila, who had been dethroned by the Lozi Paramount Chief in 1947 and now was reinstated.

H.H. Mwene added this line in 1985 to bring the information up to date; note the absence of a dynastic number behind Mutondo — it is not clear if he should be numbered XI or still IX. Meanwhile, when this book was already in the press, Mwene Muchayila died on July 14, 1990.

808 ‘The matrilineage of Mulawa daughter of Nawato’

809 The 1975 discursive text had wafuma ku Lukona ('he came from Lukona'): not the place of burial but the place of origin was indicated. This Mwene is not mentioned in Likota lya Bankoya.

810 The discursive list showed the reversed order for Shihoka I (shown as third) and Shiwtutulu (shown as fourth).

811 There was no Kahare with this burial place in the discursive list.

812 The discursive list lets Kapeshi occupy the fifth place, before any Kahare, and immediately after Shiwtutulu, and added: owo boni shinzimbi shendi shaholama ('his burial place is unknown')!

813 ‘Kahare II, a Lady Mwene — she abdicated from the kingship’

Not in the discursive list, which has a male bias.

814 A Mwene Kahare buried at the Milembo stream appears in the discursive list as the sixth item, immediately after Kapeshi, but without a dynastic number added.

815 Not in the discursive list, which has a male bias.

816 The discursive list, item 11, adds: niye batandile mu litunga ba Kawonde niye wafwila ku ncango ya Lunga mwana Lwenge (Kafuwe) hano mukalaba ku Likota ('who trekked through Kaondeland and died in the valley of the Lunga, a tributary of the Kafue as discussed in Likota)

817 Appears in the discursive list as item 7. Not mentioned in Likota lya Bankoya, but does appear in Muhumpu.

The Kaoma editorial committee proposes that here Shakalongo should be read instead of Kasholongombe.

818 Appears in the discursive list as item 8; not mentioned in Likota lya Bankoya.

819 Appears in the discursive list as item 9; not mentioned in Likota lya Bankoya.

820 The discursive list adds: ku Kapili Kamushongolwa ('on the Mushongolwa Hill', i.e. the site of the Kasempa boma); not mentioned in Likota lya Bankoya.

821 In discursive list as item 10.

822 The discursive list adds: aha hali Nkambe ya Kasempa wuluno ('where today is the Kasempa boma').

823 In discursive list as item 12, however his status as fully-fledged Mwene is as doubtful as Shimunika's main text (chapter 44) suggests; in the discursive list, the following is said about Kalumpiteka: '(12) Ba Mukwetunga Kabwata na Mwana Mwene Kalumpiteka, na mpanzendi Mutolwa niye Manda Bamylene. Kalumpiteka wafwila ku Lubanda (Namwala). Balubanda nibo bazihile Mwana Mwene owe.' ('(12) Mukwetunga Kabwata and Mwana Mwene Kalumpiteka, and his sister Mutolwa the Mother of the Myene. Kalumpiteka died at Lubanda (Namwala). The Lubanda people killed that Mwana Mwene.')

824 Obviously the district is meant, not the stream; also in subsequent lines.

825 Orig. Yenge; discursive text item 14: wafwila ku mbuwa ya Yange mwaka wa 1921 mwana Lwena niye Muzewu. ('He died in the Yange plain in the year 1921; the Yange is a tributary of the Lwena or Muzewu.')

826 Discursive text: niye waleta lukena ku Litoya lya Mbuma ku Njonjolo. ('who brought the lukena to the valley of Mbuma, on the Njonjolo stream.')
